Comdex Scale

What does our Comdex ranking mean to you?

Independent rating agencies use different scales to determine a company's financial strength. That can make it difficult to compare ratings from one company to the next. The Comdex ranking is an average percentile of a company's ratings, making it easier to compare companies. Comdex looks at companies rated by independent rating agencies, then ranks more than 200 of those companies on a scale from 100 (highest) to 1 (lowest), based on their agency ratings. A company must be rated by at least two rating agencies to receive a Comdex ranking.

High-quality investment portfolio

The RiverSource Life of New York investment portfolio is high-quality, conservatively managed and constructed to meet our long-term obligations to clients. It is largely invested in fixed income instruments and is well diversified across asset classes, industries, issuers and geography. In seeking strong and consistent investment performance, we focus on generating strong risk-adjusted returns across varying market environments, while actively managing downside risk.

RiverSource Life of New York:

- Selects investments based on relative value, fundamental outlook, aggregate portfolio risk, value, structure and risk analysis
- Focuses its mortgage-backed investments on highly seasoned securities that are senior in the capital structure and have high levels of credit protection
- Uses conservative underwriting standards for its direct commercial mortgage loan portfolio

RiverSource Life of New York’s portfolio predominantly consists of investment grade securities, and has limited exposure to alternative assets and foreign governments. For example, as of March 31, 2017, our investment portfolio had no holdings of sovereign debt in financially troubled euro zone countries.

Mortgage-backed securities

Mortgage-backed securities are debt obligations that represent claims to the cash flows from pools of commercial or residential mortgage loans. They may be “agency” securities, which are structured and backed by governmental or quasi-governmental agencies, or “non-agency” securities, structured by private entities.

¹Please see the section, “Effective risk management of variable annuities with living benefits,” on the following page for more information about our risk management program.

Investment grade

Corporate bonds are categorized as either investment grade or non-investment grade. Non-investment grade bonds are also called “high yield” bonds because they tend to pay higher yields than Treasuries and investment-grade corporate bonds — but this higher yield comes with a higher level of risk.

Products and riders backed by strength and soundness

The assets supporting our insurance and annuity products are held in either RiverSource Life of New York’s general account or in separate accounts:

- The general account holds assets backing RiverSource® fixed annuities and other fixed insurance products, as well as certain guarantees under variable annuities.
- Separate accounts hold the assets funding variable products.

Fixed products

The RiverSource Life of New York general account backs guaranteed death benefits and holds assets backing RiverSource fixed annuities and other fixed insurance products that provide clients with a guaranteed fixed return (e.g., universal life and the fixed accounts within variable universal life and variable annuities). RiverSource Life of New York assumes the investment and market risk for these products.

Variable products

The general account also backs guaranteed death benefits and other benefits available under riders we offer with RiverSource® variable annuities. For RiverSource variable products such as variable universal life insurance and variable annuities, the client selects investment portfolios, which we hold in separate accounts. The client assumes the investment and market risk for these portfolios, including the opportunity to benefit from market growth.

Effective risk management of variable annuities with living benefits

RiverSource Life of New York offers variable annuities with optional riders, or “living benefits,” which provide guarantees relating to minimum withdrawal and accumulation benefits. RiverSource Life of New York’s general account backs these guarantees. We dedicate assets in the general account to support all our guaranteed products and product features, including but not limited to living benefit riders.

As seen in the financial crisis of 2008-2009, and once again with today’s global economic challenges, people are concerned about insurers’ ability to protect themselves against the long-term guarantee exposure associated with these products. At RiverSource Life of New York, we seek to protect ourselves — and you — against market risk using a number of strategies, including hedging.

The liabilities associated with living benefit guarantees are long term, so the assets we use to reduce our risk are also long term. We follow a disciplined strategy to prepare for a wide variety of market conditions. In addition, we:

- Continually monitor our risk management program and adjust it to manage our risk and maintain our financial strength
- Review and manage daily risk exposure and changes in the values of the liabilities and related hedges
- Report our assets and liabilities quarterly as part of RiverSource Life of New York’s regulatory filings

Our hedging program has performed well through challenging market environments, enabling us to provide competitive, well-managed retirement income solutions. While our current assets under management are well positioned, we cannot predict with certainty challenges that may arise from ongoing market cycles. As with other investments, past performance of the assets in our program does not guarantee future results. However, one thing is certain: our commitment to ensuring our products are competitive and sustainable over the long term.

All guarantees are based on the continued claims-paying ability of the issuing company. For variable annuities and variable insurance products, guarantees do not apply to the performance of the variable subaccounts, which will vary with market conditions.

Hedging

Hedging is a strategy used to manage financial risk — essentially making one investment to limit the risk of another investment and minimize the possibility of a net loss.
